Current Comment

When an unprejudiced and admitted authority speaks on a subject of national interest, the nation owes its attention. That is true of the interstate commerce commission's recent annual report to congress.

One sentence shows the tone of the report, so far as regulation of transportation is concerned. In order to have fair competition, the commission says, "it will be necessary that the various transport companies pay the same rate of wages for comparable skill, render reliable service on a non-discriminatory basis, and bear an equal tax burden"

For the past ten years, ever since new forms of transport passed out of their infancy and grew to sizeable proportions, there has been no such thing as fair competition in transportation, based on equality of regulation. The principal carriers, the railroads, have been regulated in every phase of management, financing and operation, by state and federal commissions. They pay extremely heavy taxes, regardless of losses and very high wages. They provide service to all alike without discrimination.

Congress should take the commission's suggestion to heart—and make necessary revisions in the laws governing transportation so that all carriers are regulated, not just one—so that all compete on a fair and uniform basis in the interest of the traveling and shipping public, the worker, the investor and the taxpayer.

One hundred years ago, Daniel Webster, speaking in the senate, said: "Gold and silver is the money of the constitution; the constitutional standard of value which is estblished and cannot be overturned; to overturn it would shake the whole system."

The other day Senator Borah said: "This is a profound truth. We ought to bend every energy, and utilize all the power available to restore the money of the constitution."

A legion of business men, public officials and economists of all schools of thought, will say amen to that. The strength of the silver movement was shown recently when a bill to relate its value to gold lost by the slimmest possible margin in the senate—a year ago a similar bill would have been deluged under a wave of Nays. Figuratively speaking, our money is up in the air—and it may be that only gold and silver can bring it to earth again.

The long awaited lift in the construction industry began to take a tangible form at the end of last year. The federal reserve's adjusted index of contracts for November was at the highest point since October, 1931.

The principal impediment to a residential building boom of any moment, is the problem of finance. And that problem is on its way to solution. Private and public agencies have been studying it, and machinery is in motion to loosen money, at lower interest rates, for home construction. When that time comes, it will mean that prices of materials and supplies—which have been advancing slowly for some months—will jump.

It is not an exaggeration to say that the future of residential building is no longer problematical—every sign points to substantial gains. If a word to the wise is sufficient, those who need new and improved housing, will build and repair now, paying less for what will soon cost much more.

Stage All Set for Annual Old Settlers' Day Doings

Reviving friendships of the last half-century, old settlers from all Santa Clara valley and adjoining communities will gather at Campbell this Thursday to take part in Santa Clara county's 40th annual Old Settler's Day and Washnigton's birthday celebration

The county's oldest fete, Old Settler's Day has each year drawn thousands of pioneers and their families and friends to this picturesque observance. Rusty bonnets and the "Sunday best" of many a grizzled veteran of eighty or ninety years vie with the modish garb many are the tales of the days of '49 told in the informal reunions that are one of the day's chief attractions for oldsters and youngstres alike.

Washington's birthday anniversary will be observed in the morning program, in which Alonzo L. Baker, noted Mountain View publicist, will speak on the subject: "If Washington Were Alive Today," a review of the world events through the eyes of the first president. A Boy Scout flag ceremony will open the day.

Alson on the program will be heard a quartet of members of the Amigos Club of San Jose, and selections by the high school orchestra directed by A. A. Thielke, who is in charge of the music for the event.

A 25 cent luncheon will be served at noon at the grammar school cafeteria by ladies of group 2 of the Congregational church guild.

The deservedly renowned A Capella choir of San Jose State college will appear in a program of music in the afternoon under the auspices of Campbell Women's club, and Ruth Adele Warmke, talented dancer, will offer several dance interpretations.

In the evening the Campbell Kiwanis club will present "Silver Heels," a fairy fantasy written and directed by Miss Adele Grandeman of the Campbell Grammar school faculty, with a cast of 65 children costumed in colorful creations of silk, satin and cellophane.

CAMPBELL BALL CLUB MEETS S. C. HERE THURSDAY

By Hal DeFraga

After two weeks layoff Campbell will once again play ball this week. On Thursday, February 22, Washington's birthday, which is also Old Settler's Day at Campbell, the local nine will tangle at Campbell with Marty Boland's All-Stars from Santa Clara.

It is not definite who their lineup will be composed of but the following players will probably see action:

Freitas, Nino, Martin, Wilson, Gaspar, Walsh, Boland and Maloney.

Campbell will lineup with Reed and Mitchell as catcher, Quain and Jungos, pitchers, Tucker, first base, Bishop, second base; Felice, third base; Bottaglia, short stop; Hunt, left field; Silberbauer, center field; Grey, right field.

Tony Ferro will probably have some dope on the game as he has arranged for it.

On next Sunday Campbell has a tentative game scheduled with the Burbank - Cambell C. Y. O. team. They will line up with Anthenour, pitcher; Lynch, catcher; Padilla, first base; P. Brayovich, center field; Rebello, right field; Matusich, pitcher.

Campbell will oppose them with its regular lineup. This lineup will probably be changed from week to week as the management is attempting to have a sure winner for the summer league.

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary Agricultural Council of California

The year 1934 promises to require a greater degree of clear thinking and intelligent voting than any other period in recent California history—if the voting taxpayer is to escape new and ruinous burdens.

Quack "cure-alls" of every description, attractively baited to catch the hard-pressed taxpayer and voter, already have cropped up in record-breaking confusion, with the surety of many more to come as the campaign season draws nearer.

One of the most dangerous schemes, so far as the farmer is concerned, and common taxpayers generally, is the old and somewhat shop-worn "single tax," built on the discredited premise that land should carry the brunt of the tax load.

With general taxpayers—farmers, home-owners and business men alike fighting for their very existence, the "single tax," as such, would undoubtedly be doomed to more overwhelming defeat than in past elections. But the old plan has been dressed in such new garb that the average voter, unless he digs beneath the surface, might fail to penetrate the disguise.

The "bait" in the rejuvenated single tax plan, designed to snare the unwary voter, is repeal of the sales tax. But the joker in the plan is that the "relief" accorder by abolition of the sales tax would be canceled forthwith by new and crushing taxes on property.

"Single taxers," with the aid of a tax committee of the State Federation of Labor, are circulating initiative petitions for the plan, with every indication that it will be submitted to California voters at the general election in November.

Here, briefly, are the provisions of the plan:

1. Repeal of the tax limitation adopted in the Riley-Stewart plan, limiting state taxes on real estate to 25 per cent of the state budget. The repeal of this proviso would clear the way for "upping" taxes on farm property and common property generally.

2. Gradual elimination (over a five year period) of the personal property tax on improvments on land, and substitution of a heavier tax on the land itself. Improved and unimproved land would be taxed on the same basis.

3. Repeal of the sales tax and permanent prohibition of its reenactment.

4. A flat $1,000 tax exemption on every homestead.

Both the provision for repeal of the sales tax levy and the proposed $1,000 exemption fall in the category of "bait" to make the plan attractive. The universal $1,000 exemption, for example, would merely have the effect of increasing the rate sharply on the assessed value above the exemption. And abolition of the sales tax would simply have the result of transferring back on the shoulders of the common property taxpayers the $100,000,000 burden now carried by the entire state.

Entirely apart from the merits or demerits of the sales tax, the fact remains that the Riley-Stewart relief plan, which prompted the adoption of the sales levy, brought an easement of the property tax load at a time when it was imperative that something be done to avert wholesale tax-confiscations and bankruptcies. In the state generally property taxes have been reduced an average of 20 per cent and a further 15 per cent reduction is in prospect next year when utility property is to be returned to local tax rolls.

Whether the sales tax is the proper means of raising the revenues made necessary by the reduction in property taxes is subject to debate, but there can be no debate of the fact that it would be ruinous to shift the load back on the farmer and other common taxpayers. And the incognito "single tax," now projected, would not only trasfer the old load back, but would increase it far beyond its former staggering proportions.

To California's farming industry, the "single tax" spells disaster. And it is no less dangerous with its face lifted and a new dress!

Agriculture should join with home-owners and business men throughout the state in stamping out this movement before it takes root.

SCOUTS TO BE HOSTS AT TALK OF NATURALIST

The Boy Scouts of Campbell invite the readers of the Press to hear H. Clark Brown, nationally known folklorist and naturalist, at the high school annex, Monday evening, Feb. 26 at 7:30.

Mr. Brown will show the nobility of the American Indian in songs dances and legends, and illustrate his artistry by means of actual Indian costumes. Some of the tribal regalia dates from an early time.

No admission is to be charged, but a silver offering will be taken up.

Mrs. W. A. Ross, who has been suffering from bronchitis at her home, is much improved.

RUSSIA FIGURES IN LITERARY TOPIC OF LOCAL CLUB

A literary feast was spread Monday afternoon for the members and guests of the Country Woman's club by the three ladies in charge of the program: Mrs. Carl Field, the chairman, presented Mrs. R. Hyde, who sang two pleasing solos, "O Hush Thee, My Baby" and "It Is Better To Laugh Than Be Sighing." Mrs. Robson was the accompanist for part of Miss Schulte's paper, which began with an account of an interesting change of scrap books between chidren of an eastern school in the United States, and those of on in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics (Russia). She followed this with interesting items from the books, "Great Offensive," (Hindus) and "Seeing Red" (Eve Garret Grady.)

Mrs. John Strong's contribution to the interesting program was readings from a book very recently off the press, "Women in Soviet Russia" by Fannina Halle.

The experiences of two groups of travellers in Russia, who had formed rather opposing opinions of conditions in that much discussed country were most entertainingly told by Mrs. Field. These accounts were taken from "Russia, Day by Day" by Lamont and "Kaput" by Carveth Wells.

As February is often spoken of as our "Patriotic Month" on account of the two presidents birthdays celebrated then, the president, Mrs. H. C. Smith asked for the salute to the flag and read a short account of the first observance of Washington's birthday by Count de Rochambeau, and a poem by Roland Eberhart, "George Washington."

An announcement was made of the County Federation meeting at Saratoga Friday, Feb.23, and also of the dramatic entertainment to be given by the Russian actor and stage director, Vladim Uraneff, of which a more detailed notice appears in another part of this paper.

A beautiful array of spring flowers were attractively arranged about the room. Sprays of almond, flowering peach, pussy willows and Japanese quince, were rivaled bl composite bouquets of smaller plants, wall flowers, stocks, Chinese forget-me-nots, heliotrope and others.

Attention was also called to the next meeting, March 5, when Prof. Sam Harby will be the speaker. A general invitation, including men, is extended.

At a short business meeting the members voted fifteen dollars for the purchase of reference books by Mrs. Voge of the Campbell library.

"LIFE OF LINCOLN" STUDENTS' SUBJECT

A combined musical and patriotic assembly was given ofr the high school students last Tuesday, Feb. 13.

Three students spoke on the "Life of Lincoln." The Misses Norma Fummatre and Veva Birnbaume, and Dennis Bennett gave very interesting speeches.

The musical program consisted of a vocal duet, sung by the Misses Helen Payne and M. Vierra, and a violin duet given by Hugh Cramer and Mr. A. A. Thielke accompanied by Mrs. Dall.

THE STORY OF CALIFORNIA SCHOOLS

By ROY W. CLOUD
State Executive Secretary California Teachers Association

SWETT, THE BUILDER

To build up this constructive attitude on the part of the public, that free education is a public responsibility, Superintendent Swett worked untiringly. In this work he had to aid him not only his intense faith in democratic principles and his ardent patriotism, but also a logical, incisive mind that held consistently to the social principles he espoused. His reports are filled with the utterances of national leaders who saw with him the paramount importance of universal education if our American experiment in government by the people was not to end in failure.

He quoted from Daniel Webster, from Horace Mann, from the illustrious Washington, and from the gentle Lincoln. He quoted the words of the nation's greatest to the people of his adopted state, in order that they might give ear to his own pleas for educational advancement.

Daniel Webster, the mighty defender of the federal Constitution, was quoted by Swett: "I congratulate myself that my first speech on entering public life was on their (the public school's) behalf. Education, to accomplish the ends of good government, should be universally diffused. Open the doors of the school houses to all children in the land — on the diffusion of education among the people rests the preservation and perpetuation of our free institutions.

"I apprehend no danger to our country from a foreign foe.—There is no nation on earth powerful enough to accomplish our overflow. Our destruction, should it come at all, will be from another quarter. From the inattention of the people to the concerns of their government, from their carelessness and negligence. I must confess I do apprehend some danger. I fear that they may place too implicit confidence in their public servants and fail to properly scrutinize their conduct; that in this way they may be made the dupes of designing men, and become the instruments of their own undoing. Make them intelligent, and they will be vigilant; give them the means of detecting the wrong, and they will apply the remedy. . . . . ."

John Swett carried messages such as these to the people, along with his own burning appeals for attention to public education.

There is a touch of sadness in his closing message of 1867, just before his retirement; yet there is in it, also, a note of triumph, not so much for himself as for the people he has served so well:

"I love the state of my adoption: I am proud of her educational record. I hope to see California as distinguished for her common schools, her colleges, her institutions of learning, as she has been for the enterprise of her people and the mineral wealth of her mountains.

"I feel that her future prosperity is closely related to the education of her people, for the solid wealth of any state consists in educated and industrious men and women; and if the common schools are kept up to the full measure of their usefulness, her future glory will not be so much in her mines, her scenery, or her climate, as in the intelligence, integrity, morality, and patriotism of a people that shall make wealth a servant of science, art, literature and religion."

How, and to what extent, Swett's great dream was to be accomplished is a story that fills the years down to the present time.

THE TREE BEGINS TO BRANCH

The history of public education in California falls into three periods. The first period includes the years from 1849 to 1870, when the battle for free, tax-supported schools for all children was fought and won. The second period includes the years from 1870 to 1910. uring this time the development of the great institutions of public education took place. From the early meager elementary school offering the program of public education was expanded to include high schools, agricultural colleges, normal schools, technical schools, junior colleges, and the state university.

The third period includes the years from about 1910 to the present time. Though the conclusion of this educational epoch is not yet arrived, its trends have been under way long enough to indicate the nature and direction of our present day educational evolution. During this period a distinct maturing of American social philosophy is evident. This maturing social philosophy has manifested itself in people's movements of many kinds. In

"SONG OF SONGS" TO BE PRESENTED IN SAN JOSE 28TH

This section of the Santa Clara valley is favored in having the opportunity next Wednesday evening, Feb. 28, of hearing the noted Russian, Vladim Uraneff, who, with the assistance of local dramatic artists, will read his "Song of Songs."

The text of the King James authorized version of the Bible is used exclusively in Uraneff's dramatization of the "Song of Solomon," upon the preparation of which the author has been working for eight years.

Vladim Uraneff, a pupil of the world famous Russian producer, Vsevlood Meyerhold, of Moscow, came to the United States during the world war, and has won fame for himself in this country for his work as an actor and producer both in New York and in Hollywood. Uraneff has appeared with John Barrymore in several plays both stage and film, and Barrymore will later appear in the screen production of the "Song of Solomon," which he considers of great merit.

The parts will be read while Uraneff describes the ensemble, illustrated with poster settings, and accompanied by music written especially byGustav Holst, the noted composer.

Madame Mazarova George, of Campbell was instrumental in securing the visit of Uraneff to San Jose, having met him in New York.

The play will be presented in the San Jose Woman's club house on South 11th street, and tickets are on sale, at a nominal price, at Shadle's drug store.

WE AND OUR NEIGHBORS HOSTS TO VALLEY CLUBS

An interesting social afternoon was enjoyed Saturday when members of the Los Gatos History club, Moreland Good Will club, Cambrian club, Pundita Circle, Country Woman's club and Union PTA were guests of We and Our Neighbors club at their attractive club house at the corner of Union Ave. and the Almaden-Los Gatos road, Quantities of lovely spring flowers adorned the roms and made a lovely setting for the talk on "Perennial Gardens," given by Wilbur B. Howes, who is in charge of the department of horticulture at the California Polytechnic school at San Luis Obispo.

Mr. Howes is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Howes of Union district and a graduate of Campbell Union high school and of the University of California agricultural college at Davis.

Many suggestions and facts concerning plants, soils and fertilizers, very helpful to amatuer gardners, were given by the speaker, and later many asked help on individual garden problems.

Mrs. Paul Arnerich, president of the hostess club, welcomed the guests, and introduced the county officers and club presidents in attendance.

The club choral included Mesdames Frederick Battie, Carrie Davis, Milton Franci, Freeman Howes, Miss Ann Kopp, Mrs. Arthur Downing, director, and Mrs. Walter Magnesoy, accompanist, favored the company with two numbers, "Welcome Sweet Springtime" and "My Sunshine."

ADD STORY OF CALIFORNIAS SCHOLS——

no way, however, is this so plainly to be seen as in the people's attitudes toward public education, and in the demands for increased services which they have laid upon the public schools.

As outbranchings of this period are to be seen the present widely expanded curriculum, rigidly-applied compulsory education laws up to the eighteenth year of the child's life, the establishment of high school graduation as the general level of the education of the people as a whole, the movement to bring advanced education to the people through the junior college, and the greatly increased numbers enrolled in our colleges and universities. To this may be added the very significant program of adult education which is only beginning to gain its momentum in this state.

John Swett, and the educational base; Battaglia, short stop; Hunt, as the first item on the social docket the achievement of a program of universal, free public education on the elementary school level. Swett himself had said, in 1864, "When the state has provided for every child the means of a common education, then let high schools and state universities be established."

The law of 1866 made the achievement of a such a program of elementary education possible. The expansion of the California program of education to include higher institutions rapidly followed.

A few public high schools had been established before 1860, the first of these in San Francisco in 1856. This school was patterned to some extent after the English High School in Boston, Mass.

Because certain city officials refused to acknowledge the right of the city to support a high school as a part of the public school system, this school was at first called the "Union Grammar School." Two years later, however, the school took the name of San Francisco English High School. In 1859 a similar high school was opened in the city of Sacramento.

Other high schools followed in a few localities at some what later dates but this early high school development was extremely sluggish. However, the dawn of a new day in secondary education was nearing.

KIWANIS NOTES
By Heck

A very interesting hour was passed at Kiwanis luncheon yesterday noon, when ex-Congressman Arthur Free gave a biography of Abraham Lincoln.

Giving the ancestry and background of this great man of the common people, Mr. Free traced his rise through constant hardships and almost insurmountable difficulties to the highest position in this country. Mr. Lincoln gained his honored place more by his own hard work than by that of any other.

His joy in telling funny stories even in his most troubled hours has brought him closer to the common people, of whom he said the God above surely loved else he had not made so many of them.

Today Lincoln no more belongs to the United States alone, his memory is cherished and revered thruout the world.

H. C. Smith acted as chairman and presented Mr. Free.

Russ Kennedy will be chairman and speaker next Tuesday, telling of his visit in the south recently.

The We and Our Neighbors club will have an exhibition of handicraft articles and antiques in connection with a tea at their club house on Friday, March 2, from 2 to 5 o'clock. The public is invited.

Miss Mary Maxon and four college classmates made a brief visit with Mary's parents Mr. and Mrs. R. Y. Maxon, Tuesday evening, who entertained them at dinner.
